Abstract

With an increasing number of disasters worldwide, resulting in more international collaboration and support to disaster-stricken areas, the need for more education and training in international emergency and disaster management seems evident. TIEMS believes that it is important to raise the awareness of the competencies needed in emergency and disaster management, and to support those participating in these activities and operations in acquiring those competencies. This is TIEMS motivation for launching TIEMS International Certifications, TQC & TQAC.

This presentation describes the process of being certified, the status of the certification and TIEMS future plans for the development of these certifications.
